OFFERED AN ADVANCE,

An Increase of 10 Per Cent, Granted by a Pennsylvania Coal Co.

Organizer Harrls Warns Strikers Against Accepting the Offer Until So Ordered By the Officials of the Union.

Shamakin, Pa., Oct. 1 .- Notices were posted here Sunday by the Philadelphia & Reading Coal and Iron Co. to the effect that beginning with Monday an advance of ten per cent. on the net wages of all men and hoys would obtain. While some strikers went to work Monday mornlng, others held that it would not be wise to act until President Mitchell had issued officially notice as to the course the men should pursue.

Interest is manifested as to whether the Reading Co.'s collieries will be able to work, irrespective of the recognition of the mine workers' union by the mine operators.

Shenandoah, Pa., Oct. 1 .- The nor tiees of the Philadelphia & Reading Coal and Iron Co. offering miners an increase of ten per cent. in wages were posted Sunday in this town. at Mahanoy City and other places. Upon reading the notice Organizer George Harris, whose headquarters are at Mahanoy City, issued instructions to the president of local branches of the United Mine Workers to warn the strikers against returning to work until so ordered by the officials of the union. Placards were accordingly placed throughout the district notifying the mine workers to remain away from the eollieries until President Mitchell should order them to work or until the local branches of the union should take concerted action.

Mr. Harris said the Reading Co. proposition was not acceptable because the men insist on the abolition of the "sliding scale," i. e., the $2.50 basis. They also demand a guarantee that the increase in wages shall be permanent.

Gen. Gobin Sunday ordered the 12th regiment home, and the soldiers left here on a special train over the Philadelphia & Reading railway at 8 o'elock Monday morning. There was a parade of all the troops Sunday, reviewed by Gen. Gobin. The town was full of visitors.

It is stated that since the English speaking branch of the United Mine Workers was organized here last week 150 additional members have been elected.

Meetings of mine workers were held in various sections of this district Sunday night, and the Reading Co.'s notice was discussed.

The meeting of the foreign employes in this town was addressed by C. S. Pottier, president of the Polish branch of the United Mine Workers here and a national organizer. After the meeting Mr. Pottier said the strikers in this vicinity were unanimous in their intention to abide by the instructions of the national board of the United Mine Workers.

Reports from Mahanoy City and other points in the Schuylkill region indicate that the same sentiment exists throughout the region. Organizer Pottier said Sunday night that 140 mine employes at Lost Creek joined the union Saturday night, and about the same number added their names to the roll at Sunday night's meeting here. Scranton, Pa., Oct. 1 .- At every collicry in the anthracite region a notice will be posted Tuesday morning announcing a 10 per cent, increase in wages, based on the present scale, effective October 1, and that the operators will arbitrate any grievances employes may present. There is no condition to be attached as to the men returning to work before arbitration shall begin, so it is to be inferred that the men are privileged to meet in union and adopt any plan of action they may deem advisable before entering upon arbitration.

It is supposed the miners will come together as members of the union, fix the minimum of the concessions they will be content with, and then go forth as individuals to treat with their employers through committees of employes. If arrangements are concluded satisfactorily, the committees of employes will report back to the convention of United Mine Workers that they have come to a settlement, and the strike will then he declared off. This would avoid the recognition of the union by the operators and at the same time permit the union to regulate the terms of settlement.

After the services were over the man who had overheard this eonversadinner party-and there were 13 at tion boarded a Cottage Grove avenue ear to come up into the eity. After the ear had started he noticed that the two young men who had sat in front of him in church again occupied the seat in front of him in the last night, excepting that studious car. The conductor was coming toward them and they both put their hand in their poeket to get ear fare, but the one who had the gold piece in church said:

"Never mind, Clarenee, I have that gold piece, and I want to get it changed. I will pay both fares and you will not have to break that tendollar bill."

This said he drew his nand from his pocket and extended the coin to the conductor, who took it and then handed it back, saying: "That's not enough."

It was the penny that the young man had thought he had given to the church, when in reality he had donated the five-dollar gold piece. The other man paid the ear fare and the one with the penny said:

I ean't afford to give five dollars to the church. I would if I could." "It is pretty bad," said his friend, "If I were you I would go and tell Dr. - the circumstanees and I am sure he would give it back to you."

FOREIGN SUBSTANCES.

How They May Be Removed from the Eye-Never Rub Affected Organ.

A natural instinct impels a person who feels pain or irritation to rub the affected spot. When some trifling object gets under the eyelid, one is tempted to rub the exterior of the lid, and thus unconsciously imbed the object in the inner surface, thus rendering its ultimate removal more difficult. Another almost irresistible impulse prompts one to wink. This operation is apt to have the same effect. If the lid be promptly turned inside out, though, danger from both of these eauses will be avoided and the discovery of the mischief-making partiele may be promoted. It is better to have some one else do the hunting, but if a looking glass is at hand, perhaps the victim ean see well enough with the other eye to find the object in question. A correspondent of the Scientific American makes these suggestions: Gently hold the eye open with the fingers and thumb of one hand, while with the other hand dash light handfuls of water in and aeross it, so as to produce a current of water flowing over all the surface of the eye. and the under side of the lids. The push the intruding object from the one lid drawn over the other, or a silk handkerehief drawn aeross the affected part, but the eye should be kept from winking as much as possible, while prompt action is heing taken to eause a current of water to pass over the surface of the ball.

This method is a copy from nature, for when very fine dust enters the eye nature seeks to relieve it by means of the fluids which moisten neek. and lubricate the eye, and when larger objects enter, and cling more tenaciously, the irritation eauses a eopious discharge of tears, so that the eye overflows, as nature tries by flushing it to propel along and float away with the current the eause of the irritation.

A stone tablet is about to be placed in Battell chapel, at Yale university, in memory of Gen. John Patterson, a member of the class of 1762, who was prominent in the revolution.

The parish elerk of Sulgrave, Engfand, has again successfully sued the ehurch wardens for the payment of his salary of three pounds sterling a year. He said that he had on several occasions provided the communion wine out of his paltry salary.

Rev. Dr. Dean Riehmond Babbitt, in a sermon the other evening on "Social Christianity" in the church of the Epiphany, New York, said that one of the most Christian aets a man can do "is to attend the primaries earrying a Christian conscience with you that will clean the stream of polities at its source."

A new idea in eeclesiastie architecture is to be earried out in New York. In putting up the new edifice of the Church of the Archangel in St. Niehplas avenue, Harlem, the plan is to include the church and rectory under the same roof. It is said that this is the first time such a thing has been attempted in that eity and perhaps anywhere. The entire building will eost $50,000. The front of the strueture will be the rectory, with the church at the back. The entrance to the church will be through and under the rectory.

RELICS OF GLACIAL EPOCH.

Some of California's Big Trees Are the Oldest of Living Things.

The department of agriculture has issued a report concerning the big trees of California that brings out some interesting and new conclusions. The trees are described in the report as 'the grandest, largest, oldest and most majestically graceful of trees," and "the searcest of known species, with "the searcest of known species, with the extreme scientific value of being the extreme scientific value of a Railroad to

The bark of the big trees often is two feet thick, and almost noneombustible "The oldest specimens felled," the report says, "are still sound at the heart, and fungus is an enemy unknown to it. Yet the big trees, apparently, have not increased in their range since the glacial epoch. They have only just managed to hold their own on the little strip of country where the climate is locally favorable.

"The only grove now thoroughly safe from destruction is the Mariposa, and this is far from being the most interesting. Most of the other groves are glanced in a reprimanding way at the are pretty worn with light or thin either in process of or in danger of be ing logged. The very finest of all, the Calaveras grove, with the biggest and tallest trees, the most uncontaminated surroundings and practically all the literary and scientific associations of the species connected with it, has been purchased recently by a lumberman who came into full possession on April 1

"The Sequoia and Gen. Grant nation al parks, which are supposed to embrace and give security to a large part of the remaining big trees, are eater into by a sawmill each, and the private timber elaims amount to a total of 1.17? acres. The rest of the scanty patches of big trees are in a fair way to disap pear, and in Calaveras, Tuolumne and Toulare counties they are now disap pearing by the ax. In brief, the major ity of hig trees of California, certainly the best of them, are owned by people who have every right, and in many eases every intention, to ent them into

The most recent investigations confirm the estimates that these giant trees prohably live 5,000 years or more though few of even the larger trees are more than half as old. The average rate of growth is estimated at one inch of diameter for every 12 years.

"The report corroborates the state ments of one authority, who says that one tree, on which he counted 4,001 rings, was undoubtedly in its prime "swaying in the Sierra winds, wher Christ walked the earth."

"The only place in the world where the big tree exists," the report says, "it in ten isolated groves on the west slope of the Sierra Nevada mountains. The species, however, represents a surviving prehistoric genus of trees once growing widely over the globe. The southers groves show some reproduction. through which there is hope of perpetuating these groves. In the northern groves the species hardly holds its own."

What He Knew of Them. An old Dominiean friar, who had served his church for 40 years ir the Philippines, was asked by his fellows to write a book describing the characteristies, habits and eustom: of the Filipino people. To this he agreed, with the proviso that no one should see his work until after his death. When he died in Manila this year the book was found among his effects. By Andrew Balfour.

I. THE lieutenant was but a boy, a school and of Sandhurst, with an in- decent to eat, while the fizz of soda cipient mustache and a face which six months before had been fresh and it was a haggard, weary, yellow visage which, with a pair of field glasses, swept the dull green fringe of the relentless bush, and then turned to the little garrison. The lieutenant gave an order, pointed with his unger, and from a loophole in the stockade came a flash, a sharp report. As if in answer to a summons, a black shape his head swam, and why he started sprang up from the edge of the forest cover, screamed wildly, and with convulsive twitchings pitched out into the open, rolled over and over, like, crawling column. and lay still.

"Ready, lads," sang out their officer; and the men of the frontier police prepared to do as they had done every day and many a night for the past six weeks.

They were a dusky lot, in ragged uniforms, with cheek bones which told a tale of want of food, parched lips which were evidence of the muddy, brackish water that could scarcely moisten them and yet was all their comfort, and fierce, wild eyes which spoke to wakeful nights and dread uncertainty. Day and night, night and day, had they watched and fought and suffered, and still the old flag droeped idly from its post in the simmering heat, and still they waited for relief with a hope which waned within them.

The lieutenant looked to his revolver, and with fingers which trembled a little rolled a thin cigarette and tried hard to muster up a cheery smile. It was a sorry attempt, for his nerves were giving way, and there was that in his blood which saps all joviality and makes the liver in very truth a seat of melaneholy. There had been little loss in men, for the stockade was strong and high, and lead-eoated stones and pot-legs, though ugly missiles, are none too efficient as regards the searching of loopholes at 80 and 100 yards; but to the lieutenant the scorehing sun's rays, the empty stomach, the dry and burning throat, the want of sleep, and the utter loneliness were as bad -nay, worse than the loss of half a dozen black fellows, faithful to the death though these might be. It was his first experience of war, and there was no glory in the business. If he failed, few would ever learn that Fort Muti had held out to the bitter end against terrible odds, and fewer still would care. Men's minds were busy elsewhere, for the west coast was not all Africa, and trouble was brewing with men of another color and another clime. For all that, the lieutenant had done his duty, and much more than he imagined, for many things unknown to went white. him depended on the safety of his

The lieutenant's heart sank within him, and yet he spoke a few words of praise and encouragement to his men. His speech was never ended. His poisoned blood reacted on his brain, and as he stumbled forward he would start at the sight of a snake, and peer fearfully into the green screen behind him, where, had he but known it, glided the naked foe. At last the eolumn received a sudden check. Without warning, just as its head debouched from the long gloomy lane into an open space leading to a sluggish stream crossed by a narrow bridge, a heavy fire was opened upon it both in front and on the flanks. A mounted officer spurred quickly tains in his ears. But the dreaded west coast had swelled with success. He began to other lines of restless horses which smelt the battle from afar. He was met by their commander; a few brief words passed between them, and the cavalry were at once put in motion and trotted towards the river's brink.

Halting where they escaped the fire, they learned that a chance had been vouchsafed to them. The ford had to be tested, for the gallant Irish brigade had been ordered to cross the Tugela and storm the kopjes. There was a call for volunteers; but every man was willing. She had seated herself at the piano, and her long, tapering fingers were rippling over the keys. She knew full well he did not care what she played, and for herself she did not care just then to play at all. She was thinking of his insinuation at Marshall Dean's expense. She was still pondering over Mrs. Fletcher's stealthy scrutiny of two accounts, and no other, he was possessed of certain interest in Elinor's dark-brown eyes, and they were studying him coolly, searchingly, as he drew a chair near the piano stool, and seated himself and met her look with a broad, encouraging smile.

Trill and ripple, ripple and trill her white fingers raced over the keyboard. "I'm sure you know this waltz, mait beautifully at the Point two summers ago."

Mr. Dean, I-an-regret to say, is fonder of fishing and hunting than of his legitimate duties, and this, I fear, is why he is not here to welcome his sister.

The piano went rippling on, but the brown eyes kept up their steady gaze. In the deep bass chords now her slender fingers were entangled. ment, but are trying to cure it with salves and washes. While these are soothing and relieve pain to some extent, no real, permanent good can come from their use, because the disease is in the blood and far beyond the reach of external applications.

A sore heals promptly when the blood is in good condition, but never if it is diseased. The tendency of these old sores and ulcers is to grow worse, spreading and eating deeper into the flesh. They are a constant drain upon the system, gradually but surely ruin the health and sap the very life.

A person's capacity for work or pleasure is soon lost in the great desire and search for something to cure. A person's capacity for work of pleasure is soon lost in the great desire and scarch for something to cure.

S. S. S. makes a rapid and permanent cure of old sores and ulcers, and is the only medicine that does, because no other can reach deep-seated blood troubles. Ordinary Sarsaparilla and potash mixtures are too weak and watery to overcome a deadly poison that has taken possession of the blood. Do not waste valuable time experimenting with them.

"Some years ago I was shot in the left leg, receiving what I considered only a slight wound. It developed into a running sore and gave me a great deal of pain. I was treated by many doctors, and took a number of blood remedies, but none did me any good. I had heard S. S. S. highly recommended and concluded to give it a trial. The result was truly gratifying. S. S. S. seemed to get right at the have perfect use of the leg, which was swollen and very stiff for a long time.
